

Re Kirk v South Wales Police

1. Last month, July 2011, police interviewed me on 'possessing a firearm' which they knew, this time, was true. My subsequent four voluntary but frustrating visits to the police station, to obtain clarification, led to my arrest and custody for 'threats to kill'.
2. My computer, scanner memory sticks and electrical paraphernalia were immediately confiscated, deliberate, of course, to further frustrate my civil actions against them. I was promised their return at the conclusion of the case.
3. Following my 22nd June 09 arrest, for possession of a machine gun, it took nearly eight months for my seized computer to be returned with other property, such as my other guns, still being unlawfully withheld by the police, purely out of spite.
4. At around 3am, this August, the police documented a long list of reasons to oppose my release and bail for a charge now changed to a Section 4 of the Public Order, also carrying the risk of a custodial sentence.
5. Just minutes before this a female custody sergeant had granted me unconditional police bail I only founding it out when I eventually obtained my unlawfully delayed custody records.
6. In the Cardiff Magistrates, the same day, the purported duty solicitor, a complete stranger to me, informed me that if I pleaded 'not guilty' to the Section 4 allegation then the CPS would offer 'no evidence'. Was I expected to run the risk, again, of months in custody with no compensation?
7. In court, the same day, the allegation was changed yet again, as I stood in the dock. I now understand, an even more minor infringement, a Section 5 of Public Order Act was now before the judge but I saw refused any sight of it.
8. The return of my computer and papers, as the police very well knew, was urgent for the records to prepare this new JR and the rapidly approaching 28th September 2011 hearings in the High Court of nineteen years of the cases in court.
9. With the 24th June 2009 Barry magistrates having granted me unconditional bail on 'possessing a machine gun', only to be overturned on 25th June by Cardiff Crown Court, following a long list of spurious and false police allegations that I would not attend, could I risk pleading, again, a not guilty plea?

10. Similarly, 2nd November 2010 Cardiff Magistrates, also subject to a Judicial Review Application, ignored considerable medical evidence of my being unable to attend for a common assault allegation by an ex South Wales Police officer, now an HMCS official. An arrest warrant was issued and as my life was at risk, documented in MAPPA leaked memos, I applied for asylum in France.
11. This HMCS(Wales) complainant, Derrick Hassan, in July 09, had provided false forensic history to Dr  and the Crown Court, about me, to keep me further locked up under a Section 35 of the 1983 Mental Health Act. I was to be further incarcerated in the South Wales Police forensic prison hospital, Bridgend of which Dr  was the clinical director.
12. Research since has established the HM Court Service (Wales), from whom I have had years of well documented abuse, delayed putting my GP's most up to date medical report before the November10 judge, until after the hearing.
13. In my latest Cardiff case, following a Section 4 changed to 5, that caused a conviction of a mere £50, I had little choice but to plead 'guilty' for fear of a potential repeat of another eight months on remand , as in the machine gun case when we all knew it was doomed for failure from the start.
14. To have pleaded guilty meant my computer would be immediately returned for the civil actions. The police lied.
15. On the day after my release from court the officer in charge of my case promised the immediate return of my computer and memory sticks etc but on arrival at Cardiff Bay police station a fight broke out involving eleven police officers (see video) attempting to snatch back my computer bag.
16. It was eventually returned completely empty, including my cheque books, credit card, private and current court papers, with the excuse I was now being prosecuted for harassing Dr  .  had falsified psychiatric reports, unqualified, to have me transferred to his private clinics before going onto Ashworth High Security Prison, recommended to HHJ Bidder QC, on 2nd December 2009, potentially for life.
17. Needless to say I lodged a JR for the High Court to seize this equally similar ongoing example of police bullying but, as with previous JRs, I am not holding my breath.
18. With the recent imprisonment of other frustrated litigants, Patrick Cullinane Esq and Norman Scarth RN Rtd , also unable to easy access to official inexpensive court record, I, only last week, was also jailed to Holborn police station, London, for tape recording in the Principle Registry of Family Courts.

19. The Haringey barrister and so called appointed children's solicitor, yet to raise one finger to properly intervene on their behalf, reported to the presiding judge, after the solicitor was arrested, information that they very well knew was false to have me barred as a Mackenzie Friend.
20. HMCS and those also on this unregulated 'gravy train' knew it would further frustrate my preparation for the Cardiff civil Justice Centre 28th September 2011 appeals.
21. I am seeing a number of MPs, today, on the current state of our law courts and intend to include this current 'Haringey Council/drugs/ Michelle Collins' children case before the criminal courts , for long overdue public scrutiny.
22. Unchecked 'sharp practices', I have witnessed each time I go to a secret family court, are designed in order to steal vast amounts of tax payer's money and it must stop.

Unfinished Sept 2011 statement because on 23rd September 11 I was gaoled on further trumped up South Wales Police allegations all relating to the Chief Constable's 2009 false affidavit re disclosure of evidence and kept me locked up almost all winter.

So what is their problem?
